Keith Breslauer features on LSE Focal Point Podcast

Keith Breslauer, Patron Capital's managing director, has featured on the LSE Focal Point Podcast by Daniel Tamary. The podcast, which has already featured Dr David Kelly, chief global strategist at JP Morgan Asset Management and Howard Marks, co-founder and co-chairman of Oaktree Capital Management, sees industry leaders discuss the economy and current market trends in their sectors.

Keith talks about Patron Capital, its activities and its achievements. Keith and Daniel discuss the problems caused by the pandemic for the economy and the property sector, with Keith providing his analysis of the office market in a post-covid world, the impact of tech on the industry, and the importance of understanding different markets when investing across Europe.

The podcast is rounded up by Keith providing a piece of advice for students about to embark on life in the current climate. Keith emphasises that this a crucial time to learn and gain as much experience as possible.

Keith Breslauer, Managing Director of Patron Capital, said:

"It was great to speak to Daniel and discuss the issues of the day that affect all those working in the investment space, and those who might want to pursue careers in this industry in the coming years. Nurturing the next generation of talent and supporting young people to fulfil their potential regardless of their background is important to us as Patron. This is a tough time for everyone but particularly difficult for those finishing education and starting in the world of work, so it was an honour to share my experiences with the hope it will help others."
